William de Thomenhorn's right to a private oratory with a chaplain celebrating mass there daily was confirmed to him in 1329, for two years, by the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield on condition that he surrendered the licence previously granted him by the bishop. (fn. 25) In 1356 the Vicar of Rugeley complained that he was losing offerings through the ministrations of Thomas de Thomenhorn's chaplain who, it was alleged, had taken vestments, chalices, books, bread, wine, and candles from Rugeley church to the chapel. (fn. 26) [VCH, Rugeley]
